JFK Calls for More Rights for Negroes

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy appealed to a divided Congress today to reinforce the Negro's right to vote and to attend desegregated schools in a nation where he said "the cruel disease of discrimination" still exists nearly everywhere.

For the first time, in a special message, Kennedy outlined a specific civil rights program to Congress. In addition to legislation directed at the ballot and the school house, he asked for an extension of the life of the Civil Rights Commission, with expanded duties.

"The program outlined in this message," Kennedy said, "should not provide the occasion for sectional bitterness."

Yet White House officials told reporters they recognize the built-in possibilities of a filibuster by Southerners in a Senate which has just rejected a bid to clamp down on filibustering. They said, though, that the program was tailored in realistic style, that it ought to be passed, and there is a good chance it will.

In the century since Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, the President's message said, slavery has vanished but progress for the Negro has been blocked and delayed too often.

Kennedy credited his administration with a sparkling two-year record on civil rights. But he said a broad national effort still is needed, an effort embracing state and local governments, private citizens and organizations, and the congressional machinery.

His requests for legislation are expected to be submitted within 10 days or so as three separate bills.

They fall into these classifications:

1. Education.
- The main request here was that Congress authorize a program to provide federal know-how and money to push desegregation in public schools in communities which need and seek financial help.

2. Civil Rights Commission.

First set up in 1957, the commission goes out of business next November unless Congress acts. Kennedy asked that its life be extended at least four years. And he asked that Congress authorize it to expand into a national clearing house to provide information, advice and technical help to any public or private agency which

Telestar Fails to Respond

NEW YORK (AP)—The Telstar communications satellite has failed to respond to commands from the earth for the past week, the Bell Telephone Laboratories announced today.

The satellite, sent into space last July, had stopped functioning previously in November but was restored cooperation Jan. 3.

Telstar is the space "switchboard" that relays messages, photos and television from continent to continent.

Bell said the present malfunction resembles the earlier trouble, which exists nearly everywhere.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A soft drink tax bill apparently is dead for this session of the Arkansas Legislature.

Its only hope for life rests with the County Judges Association, which was to solicit Gov. Orval E. Faubus' support today.

Yell County Rep. Lloyd George, author of the bill, said he had only 30 to 35 votes for it as of Thursday.

Sebastian County Rep. B. G. Hendrix said he had pulled the House and found 70 members who would vote against the tax bill.

George said that if the county judges can show him a poll which would insure passage of the bill, he will bring it to a vote. The bill needs 51 votes to pass and Parliamentarian Neil Bohlinger has warned that the courts may throw it out if it does not get 67 votes.

The bill would give 70 per cent of the estimated $4 million annual revenues to a fund to establish a state aid system for county roads.

The bill would have taxed soft drinks one cent a bottle and soft drink syrup 90 cents a gallon.

State Only One Losing School Age Population

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arkansas was the only state that lost school-age population from 1950 to 1960, a National Education Association report showed today.

The report showed Arkansas lost 1.6 per cent. The national average was an increase of 42.8 per cent. The age bracket involved is 5 to 17. The report said 86.3 per cent of the state's youths in the 14-17 age bracket were enrolled in school in 1960.

The report showed Arkansas had 459,428 school-age youths as of July 1, 1962.

Arkansas lost 3.8 per cent of its school population between 1950 and 1960, the report showed, and in 1960 the average Arkansan had completed only 8.9 years of formal schooling.

A total of 40.4 per cent of Arkansas selective service registrants failed to pass the mental test in 1961, the report showed.

In 1960, 97.3 per cent of Arkansas students were enrolled in public schools and 2.7 per cent were enrolled in non-public schools.

Heavy Damage in Accident

Yesterday at Third and Hervey trucks driven by Donald Denham and Roy Fry collided with very heavy damage resulting to both vehicles. Police estimated $100 in damage to the caution light at the intersection which was hit by the truck trailer.

Officers charged Denham with failure to have a driver's license and with reckless driving.

Called for Talks About Bomber

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Investigations Subcommittee revealed testimony Wednesday that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara called three times for further evaluation of a controversial contract for a revolutionary new fighter-bomber plane, the TFX.

The subcommittee opened hearings on the $28 million contract Tuesday, saying it would release transcripts of testimony after they were shorn of military secrets.

The contract for development of the multi-purpose plane went to General Dynamics Corporation of Fort Worth, Tex. The subcommittee is investigating why the contract went to the Texas firm over reported recommendations by the military that the Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash. had a cheaper and far superior design.

Robert E. Dunne, associate counsel for the Senate Investigations Subcommittee, told senators Wednesday he did not know that McNamara sent the contract back three times for further study.

But he testified that rejections of plans for the plane were ordered at the secretarial level.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the full Senate Investigations Committee, questioned Dunne about the routing of the contract.

"It did reach the Secretary of Defense each time, is that right, and the Secretary sent it back each time for further consideration? Do you know?"

Dunne replied, "That is correct."

Garage, Car Destroyed by Fire

About 12:30 a.m. today fire destroyed a garage and a car and damaged the Dove Knoll home on South Elm. By the time the blaze was seen the car and garage were completely engulfed.

The blaze spread to the back of the Knoll house, causing some damage to the roof and to the siding before firemen put it out. There was no estimate as to the amount of damage.

Yesterday firemen put out a car fire on Pond Street, near the underpass. Slight damage was reported to the auto driven by Mrs. Jim Stroud. A Grass fire was also extinguished near Meyer's Bakery yesterday.

And two fires were reported in the county, one near Columbus, burned over several acres and threatened a school before being brought under control. The woods fire was in the DeAnn area.

Almost every House member who could be contacted today was indignant about the Peterson statement. Feild said he would have many co-signers to his bill and he felt it would pass easily.

"We've got to take an entire new look at this whole matter," he said. Gov. Orval E. Faubus signed the truck weight increase bill last week and the House passed the license increase bill Monday.

Feild, chairman of the House Roads and Highways Committee, was one of the strongest supporters of the truck weight package which was worked out by Peterson over the past two years.

The legislative controversy over Winthrop Rockefeller ended Wednesday.

Legislature Irked Over 'Deceit' in Truck Weight Bill

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Angry House members decided today to take another look at truck weight legislation, contending they had been deceived by Sen. Morle Peterson.

Hempstead County Rep. Talbot Feild Jr. said he would introduce a bill to repeal Act 78 of 1963, which increases maximum truck weights, and the House would try to recall House Bill 261, which increased license fees, from the governor's office.

Feild apparently had a great deal of support for his move.

"Sen. Peterson tricked us, evidently," Feild said. "Everybody in this House is disturbed. We went along thinking that everything was the way it was first explained. Now we don't know what's been done."

The Senate passed HB 261 Wednesday and Peterson explained to newsmen later that it would bring in an additional $1 million a year annually instead of $320,000 a year as first reported.

He said this was because under the weight law, which now will require weighing the front axle, truckers will have to buy a license based on a higher gross weight than they did before.

The legislature apparently was sold on the truck weight package on the premise that the higher license fees would not be assessed on trucks weighing less than 56,000 pounds.

Peterson said it might result in higher fees for trucks down to 6,000 pounds and not just those over 56,000 pounds as he originally explained it.

"If I had brought all this out beforehand I would have had all these truckers in here pouring it on," he said. "I know about it all the time but if I had called everybody's attention to it I would have had a lot more opposition."

Almost every House member who could be contacted today was indignant about the Peterson statement. Feild said he would have many co-signers to his bill and he felt it would pass easily.

"We've got to take an entire new look at this whole matter," he said. Gov. Orval E. Faubus signed the truck weight increase bill last week and the House passed the license increase bill Monday.

Differences Hinted Over Tax Slash

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republicans have fired some sharp questions at Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, trying to pin down whether his view of a tax cut is less urgent than President Kennedy's.

There have been whispers of differences between the White House and the Treasury over the program, and Dillon was asked Wednesday:

Does the administration now believe a tax cut bill this year is so important that it's willing to scrap the revenue-raising revisions if they stood in the way? Is a recession imminent demanding drastic counter measures?

Dillon, testifying before the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, insisted his views and the President's coincided.

He said he hoped the tax bill will not be "a plain reduction bill and nothing more," because the administration believes that the changes in the tax structure—which it has recommended as reforms—are important.

And he foresees no recession this year but history indicates one will certainly come before too long—and a tax cut would be good preventative medicine.

All this, however, added up to much less fire than Kennedy displayed before the American Bankers Association symposium only two days earlier.

The President said that without a tax cut, the "fifth postwar recession" is not too far off. He said that "whatever is necessary to get that bill, I would support," and "nothing should stand in its way."

Many hearers concluded that he meant tax revision could go by the board if it were too much of an obstacle. The White House Wednesday reaffirmed his stand, and said his statement Monday "indicates clearly the views of the administration."

Rockefeller told the club members, "I am very flattered that I have been privileged to be an innocent bystander."

He added, "I'm sure it was no surprise to Mr. (Gov. Orval E.) Faubus or his associates that I am a Republican. I was a Republican when I came to Arkansas 10 years ago and I have said so many times since."

Rockefeller was appointed to the AIDC post by Faubus on inception of the organization in 1955.

Rockefeller said of a recent charge by Mississippi County Rep. L. H. Autry that he would spend so much time working for his brother that he might as well give up the chairmanship. "I don't think my older brother needs my help, or is worrying about our six electoral votes."

Nelson Rockefeller, governor of New York, is a top candidate for the GOP nomination for president in 1964.

Services will be held at Harmony Methodist Church at 2 p.m. Friday. Burial will be in Harmony Cemetery.

Rockefeller Only Innocent Bystander

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—Winthrop Rockefeller returned himself an innocent bystander Wednesday in the controversy over his post as chairman of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission.

But he indicated he would use a groundswell of public favor for his services to political advantage.

Rockefeller told the Arkansas State College Young Republicans Club, "the people of Arkansas have risen up and made themselves known. I am very flattered."

Later in his talk, he said of the Republican future in Arkansas, "This is the opportunity. The people of Arkansas have risen and want to be counted. I don't intend to let the opportunity drop. We're entitled to better government in Arkansas."

An attempt to oust the National Iepublican Committeeman from Arkansas from the AIDC post apparently died in the General Assembly Wednesday.

A measure that would require Rockefeller to tell the club members AIDC post or his Republican job and a resolution praising him for his service to the state were both withdrawn.

Rockefeller told the club members, "I am very flattered that I have been privileged to be an innocent bystander."

He added, "I'm sure it was no surprise to Mr. (Gov. Orval E.) Faubus or his associates that I am a Republican. I was a Republican when I came to Arkansas 10 years ago and I have said so many times since."

appropriation as part of the withdrawal agreement. Van Dalsem said he didn't want to comment on the appropriation.

Faubus said he expected all appropriation bills to pass.

The joint Cottrill-Van Dalsem action cleared away the last major controversy pending in the House which has been tied up with one dispute or another for almost three weeks.

The House shoved its arguments aside long enough to pass 51 House and two Senate bills Wednesday. Most of the measures were pushed through at the rate of one every two minutes during a special two-hour morning session dedicated to non-controversial bills.

Reports that Highway Director F. R. Oliver may be fired and replaced by Purchasing Agent Mack Sturgis had no effect on the Highway Department's $96 million annual appropriation which was approved by a unanimous vote in the House Wednesday afternoon.

However, the reports apparently provoked introduction of a bill by Ouachita County Rep. David Pryor to require that the highway director be an experienced engineer.

The House also approved the Welfare Department's budget of $72.6 million a year, disposing of the appropriations for the state's two largest spending agencies within a few minutes.

The Senate passed the House version of a truck license fee increase bill. The action was anticlimactic, since a Senate duplicate already has passed and is on the governor's desk.

Sen. J. Lee Bearden of Leachville introduced a bill Wednesday to levy a true per capita (poll) tax of $1 a year on Arkansas residents.

The current poll tax generally is collected only from those persons who wish to qualify to vote. The Bearden bill has several checks to make sure that all persons pay the tax. It allocates the revenues to public schools which get proceeds of the current tax.

The Senate passed a bill by Sen. Dan Sprick of Little Rock to cut the state license fee for city busses from $50 to $15. Sprick introduced a bill to refund 4 1/2 cents of the 6 1/2-cent per gallon state gasoline tax on bus fuel. He said he would withdraw an earlier bill to refund the full 6 1/2 cents.

The House refused to put a crippling amendment on a bill by Sen. Clarence Bell of Parkin to set up county commissions to study school consolidation. The amendment by Montgomery County Rep. Ode Maddox would have permitted any school district to exempt itself from the study.

The Senate passed a bill by Sen. Ellis Fagan of Little Rock to exempt certain replacement parts and industrial raw materials from the state sales tax.

The House was to reconvene at noon and the Senate at 1 p.m. today.

Talk Over House Meet Broadcasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Rules Committee agreed Wednesday to hold a hearing on a resolution that would permit radio and television broadcasting of House committee sessions.

Rep. Owen Harris, D-Ark., proposed the measure. The hearing probably will come next week.

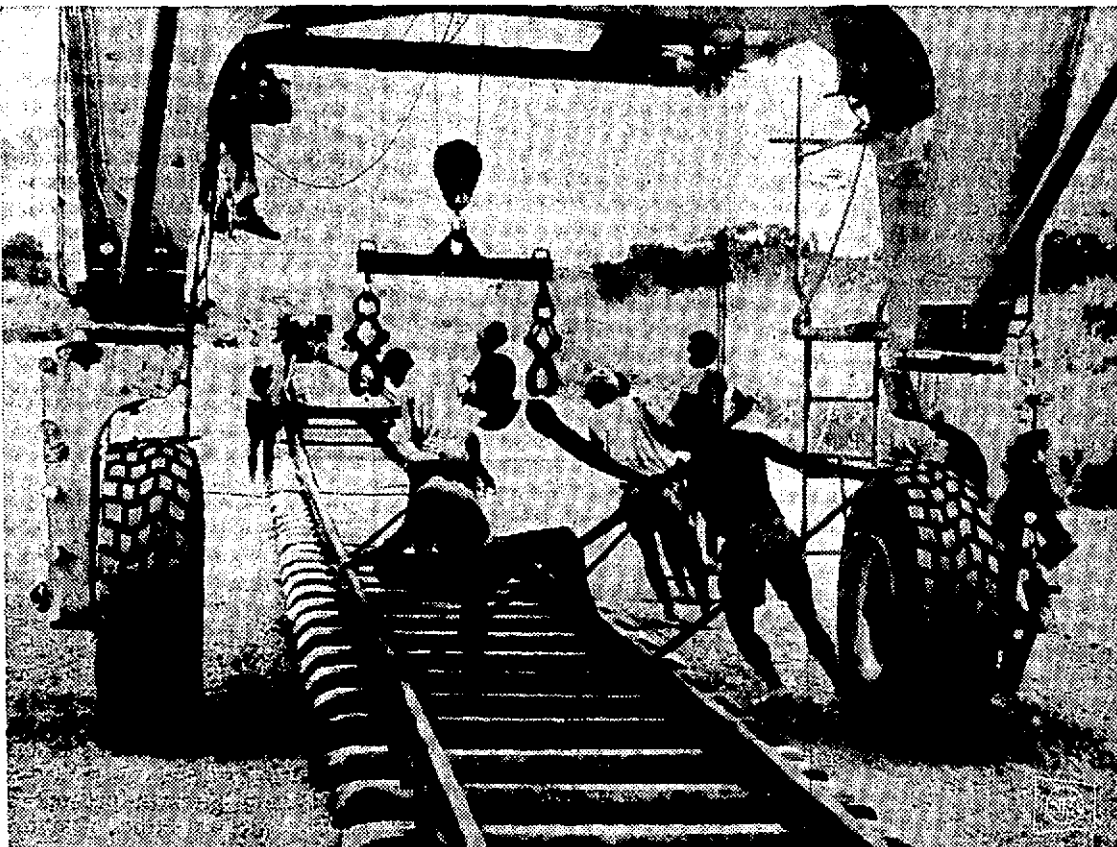

House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., holds that the House rules now bar live broadcasts of committee sessions.

The Harris resolution would amend the rules to let committees authorize broadcasts by majority vote. But it would provide that no witness could be forced to testify while a hearing is being broadcast.

It also would bar broadcast or telecast of House hearings for commercial purposes.

Prohibition Move Rolling in Kansas

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—The prohibition movement is rolling across Kansas again, staunchly supported by the prairie churches which won the first ban-the-booze battle 80 years ago.

Encouraged by success this year in touting an attempt to liberalize state liquor laws, the Kansas United Dry Forces are zealously promoting a return to prohibition.

In 1880 Kansas became the first state to outlaw the sale of liquor. That constitutional amendment withstood all challenges until 1948, when the voters repealed it in favor of package stores.

This year, hotel and motel operators, trying to attract more tourists and conventions to Kansas, got a bill introduced in the legislature to permit sale of liquor gathering spot, the Wigwam.

They figured during a three-week period the students averaged 720 cups of coffee a day. They had consumed 600 gallons of the black brew and dumped 200 pounds of sugar in it. The cream wasn't "measured."

And at Newark, Lamon Rogers reports the catch of a 42-pound beaver on Dota Creek.

by the drink. The dries raised such a fuss that the bill didn't even get out of committee. Now the dries have introduced a bill for a referendum on reinstituting prohibition.

Leading the campaign against legal liquor is the Rev. Roy E. Hollomon, a retired Baptist minister who has been jousting with John Barleycorn most of his life.

Hollomon came to Kansas 12 years ago from Oklahoma, where he was active in an unsuccessful campaign to retain prohibition.

Hollomon says he has allocated $10,000 for radio and television broadcasts to win support for the new dry campaign. The money comes from individuals and Methodists, which still regard repeal of national prohibition as a calamity.

Although many observers believe Hollomon will not win committee approval of his bill, proponents of legal liquor fear the dry strength in the prairie villages.

The Kansas Legislature, like that of most states, is dominated by representatives from rural areas who fear a pro-liquor vote would be difficult to defend at the polls.

The legislative struggle begins in earnest next Tuesday when the House State Affairs Committee holds its first public hearing on the prohibition bill.

wants them.

3. Voting rights.

Kennedy mentioned this first and gave it more attention than any other of his bids for legislation.

"The right to vote in a free American election," the President said, "is the most powerful and precious right in the world—and it must not be denied on the grounds of race or color."

He recommended, therefore, that priority treatment be granted voting suits in federal courts. He proposed that while the suits are pending federal referees be empowered to pass upon qualifications of would-be voters. (Under present law, referees can be appointed only after a court finds that discrimination exists.)

These two requests—administration officials said each offers an entirely new idea—would apply to both federal and state elections.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy sends to Congress today his first message on civil rights and a request for legislation in this ever controversial field.

The President's message goes to Capitol Hill at noon, and to a reception likely to be warm on the part of many Northerners and hot on the part of most Southerners.

As part of an attack on discrimination against Negroes, Kennedy was expected to ask for enactment of a law dealing with the issue of literacy tests as a qualification for voting. The administration supported a literacy test measure in the last Congress—it failed—without specifically asking for one.

Since the five-year-old Civil Rights Commission is slated to wind up business Nov. 30 unless Congress continues it, Kennedy has been reported ready to recommend an extension of its life.

While the Kennedy program may go too far to suit the South, it may not go far enough to please some Negro leaders. Kennedy has claimed there have been outstanding advances along the New Frontier in obtaining and protecting civil rights. Some prominent Negroes have contended there should have been more progress.

More Backing for Rockefeller

LITTLE ROCK (A)—At least four more Arkansas groups have voiced their opposition to the ouster of Winthrop Rockefeller as chairman of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission.

The Board of Directors of the Helena - West Helena Industrial Development Corp. sent telegrams to the Phillips County delegation in the state legislature, urging them to support Rockefeller.

A similar telegram was sent to Bradley County Rep. Bill Wells by a Warren businessmen's group and other Warren residents.

The North Little Rock Chamber of Commerce passed a resolution expressing its endorsement of Rockefeller and copies were sent to members of the Pulaski County legislative delegation.

The Conway Development Corporation expressed its opposition to Rockefeller's proposed ouster in a telegram to the Faulkner County delegation.

A move to oust Rockefeller because of his Republican Party affiliations apparently has lost steam because of growing support for the Pettit-Jean rancher and financier, Perry County Rep. Paul Van Dalsem has introduced a bill to prohibit officers of an organized political party from being AIDC members.

Brookwood Garden Club Organized
Mrs. Andrew's and Mrs. Down's sixth grade students organized a Garden Club at Brookwood Tuesday, the 26th day of February 1963. They elected officers and learned lots of things about the club. They also learned many kinds of flower designs.

They heard a story of some Bald Eagles around Narrows Lake from Mrs. Hughes. They were very glad to hear that some of them were close by. Everyone enjoyed the story, even the teachers. They heard lots of things that sounded like fun for the future.

They made suggestions about a name for the club and decided to name it the "Risebud Club."

The officers were Bobby Watson-president, Jimmy Singleton-vice president, Donna Stevenson-secretary, and Terry Beard-Reporter. They were very glad to have Mrs. Luck and Mrs. Hughes with them.

The meeting was adjourned after Mrs. Hughes served candy to the group.

The next meeting will be the fourth Tuesday in March.

Tuesday Bridge Club
On Tuesday evening, February 26, Mrs. Floyd Leverett entertained her bridge club. She used yellow flowers to lend a touch of spring to the setting of the two tables of players. Besides the club members, Miss Mary Roy Moser was also a guest.

When scores were tallied, Mrs. Homer Jones was high and Mrs. Gordon Bayless was second high. The game prize went to Mrs. George Frazier. Dessert and coffee were served during the refreshment hour.

Mrs. Trotter Host To PEO Meeting
Chapter AE, P.E.O. met Tuesday afternoon, February 26 in the home of Mrs. W. E. Trotter. Early spring daffodils were seen in pretty arrangements in the home. The president, Mrs. Herbert Stephens, had charge of the business meeting. At that time Mrs. E. P. O'Neal, General Chairman, reported on plans for the state convention to be held in Magnolia in April.

Mrs. Rufus Sorrells, chaplain, based her devotional message on Mark 8. For the program, Mrs. C. Nunn discussed the Sisterhood's projects, Cottey Junior College, International Peace Scholarships, and the Educational Loan Fund. Personal impressions of Cottey College were given by three members who had visited it, Mrs. F. C. Crow, Mrs. F. M. Horton, and Mrs. Roy Bagley.

For refreshments cake, salted nuts, and coffee were served to 17.

Bridge Club Meets
A local Tuesday Bridge Club met with Mrs. John Britt on February 26. At the conclusion of the afternoon, Mrs. Rob Jones was the high scorer, and the bingo prize went to Mrs. C. C. Lewis. For refreshments, pineapple sherbet and cake were served.

Coming and Going
Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Coop spent the weekend in Dallas, Tex., with the Louise Howard family.

Kenneth Ambrose entered the Arkansas Baptist Hospital in Little Rock Saturday for treatments. He is in Room 285 J for those who would like to send him messages.

John Wimberly, Kingsport, Tenn. and Mrs. Robert Hamilton, Texarkana, visited their mother, Mrs. J. W. Wimberly, in Hope over the weekend.

Mrs. Helen Ruffin Marshall returned to Hope Saturday, after visiting her daughters in Urbana, Ill., and St. Louis, Mo. She has now fully recovered from surgery she underwent in Shreveport last December and friends will be glad to know she is home.

Greek Freighter Runs Into Rocks
BREST, France, (AP)—The 1,337-ton Greek freighter Elektra ran onto rocks off the French Atlantic coast shortly after midnight and sank. Authorities said three of its 19 crewmen were missing.

Khrushchev Trying to Feather Nest

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—If bird-watchers will now fix their attention on that wise old owl, Premier Khrushchev, they may see him try to feather his nest.

The Russians could probably dismiss Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who said Tuesday a Soviet presence in Cuba "cannot be accepted," if they asked him a simple question: What are you going to do about it?

At this time in the frustrated American government it is unlikely anyone has a firm or even clear idea how to force the Soviet troops out of Cuba or persuade Khrushchev to take them out.

He has promised to withdraw some of the 17,000 in resident Kennedy says are on the island. But it's doubtful Khrushchev will pull them all out. They serve several purposes, one now and maybe others later.

Now—So long as they're on the island they discourage an anti-Castro invasion either by Cuban refugees, backed by the United States, or directly by American forces. In attack on Cuba would be an attack on them. It could mean war.

Later — The longer their presence frustrates Americans, the more Khrushchev may hope to make a deal; to remove them if the United States will do the same with some of its forces which are frustrating the Russians somewhere else.

Berlin is an example, although that would be a big price for the United States to pay after all its promises to defend the city.

For five years Khrushchev has been demanding he Allies remove their forces from Berlin which is 100 miles inside Communist East Germany and is one of the biggest Soviet blemishes in the cold war.

If Khrushchev pulled his troops out of Cuba—because of a deal on Berlin or somewhere else—it would mean leaving Fidel Castro fairly defenseless against invasion.

But it might be worth it to the Russians, particularly in the case of Berlin, since the East German Communists are far more important to Russia than the far-off Communists of Castro, a comparative handful.

Or — Khrushchev may wish to keep his troops in Cuba until he compels the United States—as the price for their removal — not to permit an invasion of Cuba, direct or otherwise.

Since Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has said the Soviet troops in Cuba are not a direct menace now to this country, and Castro certainly isn't, no invasion could be justified in world opinion.

This is particularly so since Khrushchev can argue:

1. His troops in Cuba are not invaders. They're there by invitation of Castro who, whether anyone like it or not, is the boss of Cuba.

2. The United States can hardly feel outraged by Soviet troops in Cuba when it has military forces around the edges of Russia and Khrushchev has never attempted any invasion to get rid of them.

When bafflement short-circuits the ego it can start a fire. The American ego, since the United States is the giant of the Western Hemisphere, is gigantic.

But this ego has been short-circuited by American bafflement over how to get both Castro and the Soviets out of Cuba. As a result, some Americans are now on fire and calling for action.

No action is in sight. The next move will probably come from Khrushchev. He may already have made some proposition to Kennedy.

Iceland Ousts Red Diplomats

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP)—Iceland has ordered two Soviet diplomats out of the country, charging they tried to spy on the U.S. air base here.

The government said the two were exposed by a disillusioned member of the Iceland Communist party. The Soviet Embassy denied the charges against the second secretary, Lev Kisilev and an attaché, Lev Dimitriev.

Grandfather Harris

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Power & Light Company is seeking authority of the state Public Service Commission for construction of 3.63 miles of 115,000 volt transmission lines and a sub-station at West Memphis at a cost of $487,000. The PSC also has before it a request of the Cherokee Village Development Corporation for an investigation of rates charged by the Hardy Telephone Company.

Russia, China Meet to Talk Over Split

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Premier Khrushchev's latest pronouncements in the interminable dialogue with Red China may mean a Peking-Moscow meeting to explore the painful split in the world Communist front.

This does not mean the rift is closing but rather that Khrushchev is anxious to remove the war of words from public view and take it backstage.

In his attempt to accomplish this, Khrushchev has applied the soft answer to turn away Red Chinese wrath.

Only hours after Peking had lashed him violently, demanding an apology for his attitude in the quarrel over how world communism should be advanced, Khrushchev replied with notable mildness.

He reminded the Red Chinese—and those who side with Peking—that only Moscow is strong enough to go to their aid should they be in danger. He said he would be willing to go to the aid of any Communist country attacked by "the imperialists." But he thoughtfully singled out by name Cuba, Red China, North Viet Nam, North Korea and East Germany.

The Communist parties of North Viet Nam and North Korea side with Peking in the quarrel. They support the Red Chinese contention that Khrushchev fears paper tigers and thus sacrifices opportunities for communism to advance swiftly, particularly in the backward areas of Latin America, Asia, Africa and the Middle East.

East Germany's Communist leadership has been nagging Khrushchev on the issue of West Berlin, which he virtually promised four years ago to deliver to them. And Cuba, of course, was included in this blanket pledge of Soviet protection for a specific purpose.

The Red Chinese claim Khrushchev showed the white feather last October by agreeing to withdraw Soviet missiles from Cuba after the Kennedy blockade showdown.

Patently Khrushchev repeated in his speech to a Kremlin election rally Wednesday that he did what he did to "arrest the oncoming avalanche of thermonuclear war." He said he had definitely not "left heroic Cuba at the mercy of the big sharks of American imperialism." He assured Cuba of Soviet support in any "hour of need."

Still speaking softly, Khrushchev cautioned his critics in the Red world that communism's enemies are using and exaggerating their quarrel. He expressed confidence that the Communist parties would find a way to patch

Brunche Is Returning to Middle East

By MILTON BESSER
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, the Palestine peacemaker, is heading back to the Middle East today in an attempt to calm tensions in embattled Yemen.

U. S. Secretary-General U Thant ordered Bunche, his top troubleshooter, to the Arabian peninsula up their differences.

Peking belligerently says it is ready for a private meeting to talk things over. Peking wants a backdown from Khrushchev, an admission that he has been wrong and has been an ardent "revisionist" all along. The Communist Chinese will not get any such thing.

Mao Tze-tung has had a meeting with the Soviet ambassador in Peking. Sitting in on the meeting were other high-ranking Chinese Reds, including Wu Tsichuan, the Central Committee member who was subjected to boos and catcalls in the East Berlin meeting of world Communists in January.

It seems reasonable to conclude that they were talking about arrangements for a high-level Kremlin-Peking meeting and the terms for it.

for talks with leaders of the republican government that overthrew Yemen's feudal monarchy last September.

Bunche will attempt to quiet Arab hostilities that have also involved President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic, Saudi Arabia, Jordan and the British in the adjoining colony and protectorate of Aden.

Yemeni republicans aided by Nasser's troops have tried to consolidate their hold on the southwest corner of the peninsula but have met continued resistance from royalist forces supported chiefly by Saudi Arabia.

Saudi Arabia suggested that a U.N. observer see that Nasser's troops leave the country. Nasser is seeking assurances that Saudi Arabia will not send in forces to topple the new regime.

Yemeni President Abdullah Salal accused British forces today of moving tanks into Yemen. He appealed to the United Nations to stop "this aggression."

Just Don't Trust Those Computers
By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — I don't have much use for electronic computers. I don't understand them, and I have a feeling they don't understand me.
Like, I took a test to find out if I'm creative. It was the kind of a multiple-answer test a computer gives to prospective employees in industry. And you know how it came out? I'm not creative. If they'd had computers 3 years ago, I'd have had to go into riveting.
I especially object to the new electronic computers that are going to manage our future automatic telephone systems. They are nosy, busy-body computers who'll check on who I'm calling, and who's calling me, 10 times every second, 24 hours a day.
What's more significant, if nobody calls, those insidious, infallible memory cells will record my unpopularity and remember it forever. That's computative cruelty.
Here's how the phone system will work, according to what I read...
In the central telephone office, where nice young and old ladies were wont to sit, too busy to eavesdrop or record a client's wall-flowerdom, there will be located a giant computer.
Into this office will run the wires from your phone, along with wires from your phone, along with phones in your area, and trunk lines from communities all over the country.
Assisting the computer will be a device of dubious honor called a "scanner." This scanner will check every line in the office to see whether it's in use, and feed this electronic gossip to the computer.
The scanner is fast. It doesn't fool around. It takes just one-tenth of a second to check all the thousands of line, thus, as it pointed out, your line and mine is tested for business or idleness 10 times a second, all day and all night.
When you pick up your telephone to make a call, there'll be no time to pause and reconsider. Within a few millionths of a second, the scanner will be on the ball, pushing you into action. First it checks its memory to see if a change was made when you picked up the phone, finding no record of your phone having been in use a second before, it'll check to see if your line is ringing. If it is, your picking up the phone would have been in answer to a ring, if there's no ringing, the system concludes that you picked up the phone because you wanted to make a call.
Big deal.
Having reached this conclusion, the computer switches on the dial tone. While you're dialing, it writes your phone number on an electronic "scratch pad" memory circuit. As you finish dialing, it records that number too. Now it really gets frantic...
It steps up the number of times your line is being scanned from 10 per second to 100 per second. It will do this with the back of its hand, so to speak, while continuing to scan the thousands of other lines and deciding what action to take in their interests.
Now it whips into more action — sets up the ringing connection on your line, while checking the line you're calling. When someone answers, the "brain" promptly sets up a talking circuit between the two lines.
The computer is so blamed efficient it also checks some 800 important voltages throughout its system, lists them on a teletype and then (presumably when it's one-millionth of a moment) repairs them itself.
Just thinking about the process makes me nervous.
The electronic computer is no doubt efficient, but there's something so coldly, maliciously frankensteinian about them.
When Alexander Graham Bell, 87 years ago, shouted into the first phone, "My God, Watson...!" I think maybe he'd had a vision of the future.

Yank Fielders Knocking Off Lot of Cash
FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—They win more than anyone else, but otherwise the New York Yankees aren't apt to cause much of a radical stir in major league baseball.
They shook off the cloak of conservatism Wednesday, however, when they:
1. Signed slugger Mickey Mantle for $100,000.
2. Displayed the contract for all to see.
3. And then landed slugger Roger Maris for $2,000 virtually before the ink was dry on Mantle's contract.
Thus, the world champions shattered precedent not only by signing their two highest-priced performers at the same stroke but also by showing off the salary figure on a player's contract—normally a top secret item.
Why the Yankees exhibited Mantle's signed contract to newsmen was not explained, but probably because the document puts the Oklahoman in a small circle of baseball's 100-granders. Willy Mays signed for that amount last week with the San Francisco Giants, and Stan Musial, Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio have been the only others in the club.
Mantle, 31, has been an all-around athlete in his 12 seasons with the Yankees but has established himself as a star of the first magnitude nevertheless. Last year, for example, the switch-hitting better missed 39 games altogether and was limited to arduous duty in several others, mostly because of leg injuries.
But he paced the Yanks to the American League pennant, wound up with a .321 batting average and 30 home runs, and was voted the Most Valuable Player award for the third time. His exploits earned him a raise of some $15,000.
Despite his history of physical setbacks and his relatively advanced athletic age, Mantle said Thursday that he hoped to "play five more seasons at top clip, maybe more."
Maris, the 61-homer man of 1961, was expected to take a rather hefty cut in pay after last season's considerably less spectacular showing—but he'll get the same $72,000. He hit 33 homers in '62, and batted .256.

Also-Rans Get 2nd Chance in Basketball
By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
The also-rans get a second chance, for whatever it may be worth, in the Atlantic Coast and Southern Conference basketball scrambles today.
Those two conferences open their annual post-season tournaments with powerful Duke, winner of 15 straight and ranked second in the nation, a top-seeded favorite in the ACC while West Virginia is favored to add to its history of success in the Southern Conference.
Duke ripped out a 14-0 record against ACC opponents in regular season play and West Virginia compiled an 11-2 mark against its conference opponents. Those records, however, are good only for the top spot in the bracket as the leagues go to tourney play to determine their NCAA representatives.
The ACC champion gets a bye in first round NCAA eastern regional play and meets the winner of the Pitt-New York University game in a regional semifinal. The Southern Conference champ goes against the Yankee Conference winner in an eastern regional first round game.
Bowling Green backed into the NCAA Midwest regionals when Western Michigan edged Toledo 69-64 Wednesday night. Bowling Green will play Notre Dame in a first-round NCAA game.
The Irish warmed up with a 2, at 2 p.m. at Davis Chapel Methodist Church.
The Youth Fraternity will meet at the same place at 12 noon. All members of both organizations are urged to be present. Mrs. Joella Evans, W.M., Mrs. Edna Davis Supervisor and Reporter.

Just Don't Trust Those Computers
By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — I don't have much use for electronic computers. I don't understand them, and I have a feeling they don't understand me.
Like, I took a test to find out if I'm creative. It was the kind of a multiple-answer test a computer gives to prospective employees in industry. And you know how it came out? I'm not creative. If they'd had computers 3 years ago, I'd have had to go into riveting.
I especially object to the new electronic computers that are going to manage our future automatic telephone systems. They are nosy, busy-body computers who'll check on who I'm calling, and who's calling me, 10 times every second, 24 hours a day.
What's more significant, if nobody calls, those insidious, infallible memory cells will record my unpopularity and remember it forever. That's computative cruelty.
Here's how the phone system will work, according to what I read...
In the central telephone office, where nice young and old ladies were wont to sit, too busy to eavesdrop or record a client's wall-flowerdom, there will be located a giant computer.
Into this office will run the wires from your phone, along with wires from your phone, along with phones in your area, and trunk lines from communities all over the country.
Assisting the computer will be a device of dubious honor called a "scanner." This scanner will check every line in the office to see whether it's in use, and feed this electronic gossip to the computer.
The scanner is fast. It doesn't fool around. It takes just one-tenth of a second to check all the thousands of line, thus, as it pointed out, your line and mine is tested for business or idleness 10 times a second, all day and all night.
When you pick up your telephone to make a call, there'll be no time to pause and reconsider. Within a few millionths of a second, the scanner will be on the ball, pushing you into action. First it checks its memory to see if a change was made when you picked up the phone, finding no record of your phone having been in use a second before, it'll check to see if your line is ringing. If it is, your picking up the phone would have been in answer to a ring, if there's no ringing, the system concludes that you picked up the phone because you wanted to make a call.
Big deal.
Having reached this conclusion, the computer switches on the dial tone. While you're dialing, it writes your phone number on an electronic "scratch pad" memory circuit. As you finish dialing, it records that number too. Now it really gets frantic...
It steps up the number of times your line is being scanned from 10 per second to 100 per second. It will do this with the back of its hand, so to speak, while continuing to scan the thousands of other lines and deciding what action to take in their interests.
Now it whips into more action — sets up the ringing connection on your line, while checking the line you're calling. When someone answers, the "brain" promptly sets up a talking circuit between the two lines.
The computer is so blamed efficient it also checks some 800 important voltages throughout its system, lists them on a teletype and then (presumably when it's one-millionth of a moment) repairs them itself.
Just thinking about the process makes me nervous.
The electronic computer is no doubt efficient, but there's something so coldly, maliciously frankensteinian about them.
When Alexander Graham Bell, 87 years ago, shouted into the first phone, "My God, Watson...!" I think maybe he'd had a vision of the future.

Yank Fielders Knocking Off Lot of Cash
FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—They win more than anyone else, but otherwise the New York Yankees aren't apt to cause much of a radical stir in major league baseball.
They shook off the cloak of conservatism Wednesday, however, when they:
1. Signed slugger Mickey Mantle for $100,000.
2. Displayed the contract for all to see.
3. And then landed slugger Roger Maris for $2,000 virtually before the ink was dry on Mantle's contract.
Thus, the world champions shattered precedent not only by signing their two highest-priced performers at the same stroke but also by showing off the salary figure on a player's contract—normally a top secret item.
Why the Yankees exhibited Mantle's signed contract to newsmen was not explained, but probably because the document puts the Oklahoman in a small circle of baseball's 100-granders. Willy Mays signed for that amount last week with the San Francisco Giants, and Stan Musial, Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio have been the only others in the club.
Mantle, 31, has been an all-around athlete in his 12 seasons with the Yankees but has established himself as a star of the first magnitude nevertheless. Last year, for example, the switch-hitting better missed 39 games altogether and was limited to arduous duty in several others, mostly because of leg injuries.
But he paced the Yanks to the American League pennant, wound up with a .321 batting average and 30 home runs, and was voted the Most Valuable Player award for the third time. His exploits earned him a raise of some $15,000.
Despite his history of physical setbacks and his relatively advanced athletic age, Mantle said Thursday that he hoped to "play five more seasons at top clip, maybe more."
Maris, the 61-homer man of 1961, was expected to take a rather hefty cut in pay after last season's considerably less spectacular showing—but he'll get the same $72,000. He hit 33 homers in '62, and batted .256.

Amity to Play Cedarville in State B Meet

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Defending champion Sparkman was ousted from Class B competition in the state boys basketball tournament Wednesday as the event entered the quarterfinal state.

On tap today are matches between Biggers-Reyno and Lake Hamilton at 1:50 p.m., Amity and Cedarville at 6:30 p.m. and Vandale and Dyess at 9:10 p.m.

Yellville gained its 40th straight victory in toppling Sparkman from the tournament, 74-62.

Elliott McVey sank 41 points, 23 of them of which came in the first half. That equaled the entire output of the opposition during the period.

John Selph topped Sparkman with 25 points.

Dyess downed Vilonia 57-50 and Vandale nicked Banks 44-43 in day game.

Clyde Richards and Charles Grego paced a comeback staged by Dyess in gaining the victory.

Vandale won by virtue of Bob Dobson's free throws in the last three seconds of the game.

Quarterfinals in Class A Tournament

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Class A division of the state basketball tournament will complete quarterfinals tonight with three games out.

Monticello meets Manila at 12:30 p.m., Tuckerman takes on Emerson at 3:10 and Marianna meets White Hall at 7:50.

Green Forest had a rough time eking a 42-40 overtime victory over Sheridan Wednesday night to stay in the running. The regulation game was tied 40-40 and neither team scored a point in the overtime period.

Don Jones iced it for Green Forest on two free throws made after the buzzer sounded. He was fouled going for a lay-up as the extra period ended.

Jones was high man for the victors with 22. Ronnie Gillis led Sheridan with 11.

In day games Marianna whipped Marshall 57-56 and White Hall sneaked by Gosnell 33-32.

Jerry Fong could have tied the game after bringing Marianna to within one point of Marshall, 55-53 with three seconds left, but missed the openend of a one-and-one shot.

Danny Jackson got the rebound and cinched the game with a field goal.

White Hall took a one-point lead against Gosnell and led the remainder of the game. Tommy Louks led the victors with 29 points and Bobby Robinson hit 22 for Gosnell.

Playoff in Double and Triple A

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Pine Bluff and Fort Smith battle at 7:30 p.m. tonight for a berth in the Class AA-AAA boys state basketball tournament.

They will meet in the Hendrix College Gym, a neutral site chosen by Big Nine Conference coaches and school principals at a meeting in Little Rock last Sunday.

The winner goes to the tournament. Tonight's battle will end a four-team playoff that began here Tuesday.

Pine Bluff knocked off Hot Springs 60-53 in the first game and Fort Smith cut down Little Rock Central 67-57.

The four teams tied for fourth place in the Big Nine basketball race with 4-4 records. The playoff was held to decide which team gets the fourth Big Nine spot in the state tournament.

North Little Rock, Blytheville and Little Rock Hall — the top three teams in the Big Nine in regular season play—got the first three state tournament berths.

Baseball also has its cold war. Called contract negotiations by sensitive major league brass, the annual psychological struggle today finds 20 players still pounding the desks of harried general managers.

Among them are such stars as Rocky Colavito and Norm Cash of Detroit, Orlando Cepeda, Juan Marichal and Jose Pagan of National League champion San Francisco. Baltimore's Brooks Robinson and Norm Siebern and Jerry Lumpe of Kansas City.

With all players due to report to their clubs by today or Friday, it's certain that many will be officially classed holdouts. Only eight teams have completed the signing phase of their operation.

The American League, showing 19 unsigned players on nine clubs, has the biggest headache.

Kansas City has seven unsigned—Siebern, Lumpe, outfielder Manny Jimenez, catcher Bill Bryan, pitchers Diego Segui and Dave Wickersham and newly acquired outfielder Chuck Essegian.

While Kansas City has the biggest numerical problem, Detroit may have the toughest problem in Colavito, who hit .273 last season while belting 37 homers and driving in 112 runs. Cash, who dropped from a league leading .361 in 1961 to .243 last year, appears to be ready to give in.

Colavito seems headed for long siege. "The next move is up to him (Tiger General Manager Jim Campbell)," said Colavito, who has been offered a slight increase over his $52,000 salary for 1962. Campbell also is adamant, retorting:

"I'm not going to call him, I said what I have to want we talked for 90 minutes the other day."

The world champion New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals closed their ledgers Wednesday, joining Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, the Chicago Cubs, Cincinnati and the Los Angeles Dodgers and Angels with players all signed.

Baseball Also Has Cold War

By GERALD MILLER
CORTINA, Italy (AP)—A three-way contest between West Germany, Canada and the Soviet Union dominated the start of the 1963 World Figure Skating Championships today.

At stake was the crown for the pairs competition, first title to be decided in the four-day event at Cortina's Olympic Stadium.

Squared off against Canada and West Germany—two nations that have dominated pairs skating since its inception a world event—was the Soviet Union, hungry for its first world figure skating title of any kind.

The Russian husband-wife team of Oleg and Ludmilla Protopopov enjoyed a tactical advantage of a late start in the skating order—ninth place in the field of 12.

The pre-meet favorites, Marika Kilius and Hans-Jurgen Baunler of West Germany, faced the disadvantage of a nearly starting time in the skating order—No. 3—just ahead of Canada's Gertrude Desjardins and Maurice LaFrance.

Debbie Wilkes and Guy Revell, the Canadian and North American champions who came here as Canada's top hopes, withdrew Wednesday. Miss Wilkes suffered a head injury in a fall Monday.

The United States was hopeful of landing one of its three teams among the top five. All fared well in the skating order, with champions Judianne and Jerry Fotheringill fifth, runners-up Vivian and Ronald Joseph seventh, and third-place Patti Gustafson and Pieter Kollen 10th.

ones into the fold—Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris—while the Cardinals wound up by signing outfielder Minnie Minoso, catcher Carl Sawatski and pitcher Ed Bauta. Milwaukee signed outfielder Gus Bell.

7 to Participate

SEARCY, Ark. (AP)—A Titan II missile was lowered into the first silo in central Arkansas Wednesday. Workers placed the two stages of the missile in Complex 4, eight miles north of Searcy, near Albion. Seventeen other complexes throughout Arkansas are scheduled to receive missiles during the spring and summer.

Keep your eye on the competition

You do it every time you check the advertising in your daily newspaper to see what the competition is up to...what's on sale...where...when...for how much.

You learn a lot about the day-to-day state of the marketplace by reading the other fellow's advertising.

And so does the shopping public.

So use the daily newspaper to keep an eye on the competition...use it for market research...but don't lose sight of the main issue. Use it to keep yourself in the public eye with consistent, productive advertising.

Agreement of 20 Years Is the Trouble

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trouble with the Allies over nuclear weapons has its roots in a secret agreement made 20 years ago at Quebec between President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill.

Their two nations, along with Canada, were working together to develop the atomic bomb. Their secret, wartime agreement — to exchange information on atomic development — was disclosed after the war.

But the United States ended the agreement after the war and put a lid on information. Years later, in his "Memoirs of the Second World War," Churchill still sounded terribly disappointed.

"I thought the best possible arrangements had been made in the agreement with President Roosevelt,"

The British were certainly disappointed. So, later, were the French. Now President Kennedy, for the sake of the cold war alliance, is trying to work some new kind of agreement. He calls it a multinational nuclear force.

That's a vague, mushy-sounding phrase. It's because Kennedy hasn't been clear on what he has in mind. For reasons that follow he probably doesn't know exactly what he can do or how far he can go. Congress has a say in this.

Roosevelt died before the war with Germany ended and was replaced by President Truman. The British replaced Churchill with Prime Minister Attlee before the war with Japan was ended.

Attlee met Truman in Washington late in 1945 to discuss a future atomic partnership. In his memoirs written years later Truman recalled asking the State Department for an interpretation of the Quebec agreement.

He got this answer and stood by it: exchange of information on how to manufacture the bomb — "know-how" — was to be shared only if necessary to get the bomb made.

The department said this was understood by Churchill's experts working on the problem. But when Churchill was writing many years later he still seemed to have a different understanding.

U.S. reasoning went like this: Although the United States had a monopoly on the bomb in 1945, the Russians eventually would learn how to make it. Meanwhile, this country wasn't going to help the Russians break the monopoly by divulging manufacturing "know-how."

In August 1946 Congress made

Gary Geiger Has Survived Many Things

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Gary Geiger, whose problem-plagued baseball career contains all the ingredients for a radio soap opera, has survived a collapsed lung and a bleeding ulcer in the last two years, and now faces this critical question:

Can a young, frail outfielder from the little town of Sand Ridge, Ill., find happiness while playing for the Boston Red Sox?

That's the exact position the 25-year-old left-handed batter finds himself in today after revealing that the stomach trouble he suffered last season was actually a bleeding ulcer.

Geiger, whose 160 pounds stretches somewhat thinly over a 6-foot-1 frame, was struck down at one point in 1962 for eight days. He required six blood transfusions and lost 18 pounds. Now, on doctors' orders, he must either relax or undergo an operation.

Battling to grab an outfield berth over Carl Yastrzemski, Lu Clinton or Roman Mejias, Geiger said at the Red Sox camp Tuesday that the stomach disorder was diagnosed as a bleeding ulcer by his hometown doctor after the 1962 campaign in which he wound up hitting .249.

Kansas City first baseman Norm Siebern also has a problem. He might spend the season as an insurance agent.

So says Athletics President Charles Finley, who revealed the .308 hitter has turned down three contracts offers, each calling for more money.

"Siebern asked me what I would do if he refused to sign," Finley said. "I told him in that case I would take him on for the years as an insurance salesman for me."

Siebern has shown no inclination to work for Finley in either capacity.

San Francisco's Jack Sanford, who last week criticized the National League champion Giants for holding the team's pitching pattern against him in salary negotiations agreed to terms for an estimated $37,500.

A 24-game winner, Sanford said that he pitched the last week of the pennant scramble with a 2-inch cut on his heel from an operation for removal of an abscess. He also said he completed only 13 games because he had been told to pitch hard and let the bullpen worry about finishing up.

Ernie Banks is finding it hard to play with a winner.

The Cubs first baseman lost in his first bid for political office. Incumbent Ald. James A. Condon, a Democrat, kept his city council seat with 9,296 votes. Banks, a Republican, drew 2,028, and should be happy.

He drew more votes than there are Cub coaches.

Arkansas Again the State Song

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Eva Ware Barnett's "Arkansas" is again the state song under a resolution approved today by the Arkansas Senate.

The resolution, already passed by the House, is ready for Gov. Orval E. Faubus' signature.

"Arkansas" first became the state song in 1917, the year after it was written. It was replaced in 1949 by "The Arkansas Traveler," a fiddle tune, after Mrs. Barnett sued the state for infringing on the copyright of her song.

She offered recently to give the copyright to the state.

Quik 'n Sure Biscuits are almost fool proof to make since the baking powder and salt are evenly distributed throughout the flour. You simply add the shortening and milk.

Angel Biscuits are a new taste treat in hot breads. They are actually biscuits containing yeast. But no rising time is required!

Garlic Biscuits are nippy tasting from the garlic and tomatoes that are poured over the unbaked biscuits. Serve them with plain meats such as chicken, round steak and ground beef patties.

Yorkshire Pudding is especially delicious served with roast. It's very easy to prepare. Should be served hot.

Supreme Chicken and Dumpling Casserole is elegant enough for any company menu. It's simply a combination of cooked chicken, hard cooked eggs and Dixie Lily Dumplings.

Raisin Muffins add zest and interest to breakfast, lunch or with dinner. If you have a young cook in the family let her make these.

Caramel Nut Bread is wonderful as a between-meal snack and as dessert in packed lunches. It's slightly sweet but more like bread than cake.

Cornmeal Raisin Bread contains cornmeal and flour in equal portions. It's different in texture and taste. Serve it with dinner soon.

Quick Yeast Rolls and Cinnamon Twists are easy to make for even an inexperienced cook. The dough only rises once after the rolls or twists are already shaped.

Legislative Business No Exception

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Between 20 & 25 per cent of the legislation introduced in each General Assembly deals directly with business and the current legislature is no exception.

The range of business bills is wide—for taxation and regulation to outright prohibition—and reaction of the business community is as varied as the language of the measures.

Most spectacular in this session's business legislation is the administration's package of bills designed to force out-of-state insurance companies to invest in Arkansas.

These proposed measures have brought out the insurance industry in full battle dress and to effectiveness of their fight has resulted in administration moves to make the bills easier to pass.

Also attracting attention in this session is the bill to restrict Sunday sales which Sen. Q. Byrum Hurst of Hot Springs pushed through the Senate. It is pending before the House Judiciary Committee.

This bill brought business leaders out in force to support it. They said stores which open on Sunday have them at a competitive disadvantage.

Behind these attention-getting measures is a large body of legislation most of which makes small, technical changes in the administration of business by various state agencies.

For example, bills are pending to create a state Board of Electricity to regulate the electrician's trade, a state Board of Elevator Safety and a state Livestock and Poultry Commission.

Other bills would set standards for premium and regular grades of gasoline and prohibit the giving of trading stamps on gasoline purchases.

Perhaps the most far-reaching piece of legislation, however, is Perry County Rep. Paul Van Dusen's weights and measures bill which has passed the House and is pending in the Senate.

The bill would set up a Division of Weights and Measures under the state Plant Board to check weighing devices and the weight of pre-packaged merchandise shipped into Arkansas.

Arkansas and Mississippi are the only states which do not now have weights and measures laws.

The fight over the insurance bills promises to be the bitterest if not the most exciting of this legislature.

Faubus' forces have introduced several bills and the governor would like to see all of them passed, giving him the final option on which to sign and which to veto.

There are three key bills. One would give insurance companies three years to invest 75 per cent of all the reserves in their Arkansas policies. Another would require investment of 50 per cent of the reserves which accumulate after Jan. 1, 1961.

The price of non-compliance in both bills is loss of the right to do business in the state.

The third bill would cost the premium tax on fire and casualty companies from 2 to 3 per cent and the tax on life companies from 2 1/2 to 3 per cent.

Originally, the tax increase was tied to the 50 per cent bill with provision for reducing the tax to 2 1/2 per cent if the companies made the required investment.

Pledges U.S. to Block Any Cuban Attack

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk has pledged that Fidel Castro will be blocked from trying to export armed attack. His assurances seem unlikely to quiet the crackling debate over the administration's handling of the Cuban problem.

Rusk said in Houston Tuesday night that if Cuba tries to use arms outside its territory it "will be met with the armed forces of the hemisphere" and repeated that "A Soviet military presence on that island cannot be accepted."

Use of arms by Cuba outside the island, he said, would be "intercepted, interrupted and stopped."

"Cuba must not become a source of infection for the hemisphere," he told a Texas Daily Newspaper Association meeting.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said Rusk's statements "demonstrate the continued determination of the administration to cope with this situation in Cuba."

There was some Republican skepticism.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., a Foreign Relations committeeman, said, "I wish Secretary Rusk could make that determination retroactive, because the Russians apparently are occupying Cuba in force and I understand Soviet-made weapons are showing up in considerable quantities in other Latin-American countries."

The Senate Preparedness subcommittee hears a report today on Soviet military strength in Cuba and how much of a threat it is to the hemisphere.

Maj. Gen. Robert A. Brietweiser, chief of Air Force intelligence, has been called to testify at a closed session.

His command provides the reconnaissance photographs which Mansfield said kept to daily check on the island's military status.

The administration Tuesday added 14 ships to the previous list of 12 vessels banned from carrying U.S.-financed cargoes because they engaged in Cuban trade.

There was a feeling on the part of some members of Congress that this wasn't going far enough.

Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., told the House, for example, that the United States should close its seaports to all nations which allow their flags to be flown in commerce with Cuba. He said nine British merchant ships put into Cuba in the last six weeks.

In his address, Rusk did not detail any plan to reduce the heavily armed and manned Soviet outpost.

Meanwhile, the cannoning over Kennedy's foreign policy thundered on.

In a fresh attack, Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, accused the administration of making it impossible for Congressional Republicans to cooperate on a bi-

There was no loss of license provision in the bill. Having the tax in the bill, however, made it need 27 votes in the Senate and 75 in the House to pass.

Without the tax, it will need 18 in the Senate and 51 in the House. The tax bill, of course, will need 27 and 75.

Divorcing the tax and investment requirements indicated the administration is more interested in getting the investments than the additional tax revenue.

partisan foreign policy. Hickenlooper, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee and member of the Foreign Relations Committee, told a news conference Republicans couldn't be expected to go along blindly when they were left out of the decision-making process.

Mansfield said he didn't object to legitimate criticism and that he was not advocating silence by the Republicans. But he added, "it does our country no good to rake over old ashes."

He indicated he classified in this category argument about the abortive 1961 invasion of Cuba. Mansfield said he had backed up the statement of Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois that four American fliers were killed in the Bay of Pigs fighting because he and other members of Congress had been briefed at the time about the deaths.

In Birmingham, Ala., a mother whose son apparently was one of the four Americans killed in the invasion, has accused the President of evading questions about her son, Riley W. Shamburger Jr.

He and three other Birmingham men were reported to have been killed when their plane crashed during the assault.

Mrs. Riley W. Shamburger Sr., said Tuesday that when Kennedy contended no Americans were in the invasion she wrote him asking: "If no Americans were involved, where is my son?"

"But he evaded my question," she said.

In Washington, the White House said she was answered in a letter by Kennedy's Air Force aide, Maj. Gen. Gaffney McHugh, who said that the organization which hired her son—apparently for the liberation force—had conveyed to her all that was known about the circumstances of her son's death.

Plastic Tank Armor Stops Rifle Bullets

By RALPH DIGHTON
Associated Press Science Writer
AZUSA, Calif. (AP)—Americans in the Korean War were somewhat disturbed to encounter a hand-held Soviet 14.5 mm. rifle which bored holes through the armor of our newest tanks.

Now U.S. technology has come up with a new armor, lighter and tougher than steel, which stops the thumb-thick 14.5 mm. bullet. The new armor is made of plastic. Unlike metal alloys, which stop projectiles by being dense enough to absorb their high-speed energy, the new plastic plays tricks on the bullets. It lets them penetrate slightly, then twists them sideways so they break into small pieces snugly pocketed within the armor panel.

This happens even when the bullet is fired head-on. Inventor Harry King, a materials engineer at Aerojet-General Corp., says the armor is now being tested at the Army's Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds. Many of the details are secret. The armor which stops the Soviet 14.5 mm. antitank projectile is made of sheets of glass fiber and secret non-metallic materials, bonded into panels about two inches thick.

Just how the bullet, traveling more than a half mile per second, is turned sideways and shattered is something that King himself isn't sure he knows.

"When I set out to make the panel, I predicted this would happen," he says, "but until the tests are completed I can't be positive why it happens."

Dr. Anders' Dilemma

By Henry and Sylvia Lieferant

Copyright © 1958 by Henry Lieferant

THE STORY: When Rhoda Bascomb meets Nancy in the hospital elevator, she begins to realize that Nancy may be a rival for Dr. David Anders.

Miss Brangwyn stopped David at the dining-room door that evening, noticing and smiling at his preoccupation.

"Dr. Anders, have you been invited to the dance? It's tomorrow night, you know. I've been looking over the lists but haven't seen your name anywhere. We like to have all our Residents attend."

"I don't dance, Miss Brangwyn." "But it's a hospital party. You come on my ticket, and then don't pay any attention to me. I'm not one to make the girls jealous." She was 50, tall, gray-haired, stout, with dark eyes that were merry now but could be searing and scornful in the presence of negligence.

He saw Nancy, of course. From his natural vantage point several inches above the dancers, it was simple to pick her out in Thorne's arms. First the back of her head, although she had changed her hair style, and Thorne facing him. Then they turned, and she faced him. The long look she gave him stretched a taut steel wire between them, which nobody seemed to notice. The dance was a hybrid family reunion and boarding school frolic. Most of the girls were in evening dress. The students on night duty had been given an hour to join festivities and these, in uniform, lent a strange note to the scene.

It was the only occasion of the year when the interns and nurses could mingle without bans, when the girls with "outside" boy friends could display them. A touch of anger was added to the gaiety by the fact that no dancing would be permitted after 11. Supper would be served then.

David felt like the death's head at the feast, for the more often Nancy passed with Thorne, the deeper his depression grew.

As David was seeking means of escape, the grilled plate glass door opened. Rhoda Bascomb stepped into the hall, with just the right degree of hesitancy. Her father, his ruddy face sheepish and not without a trace of impatience, came behind her.

"It's my fault, Miss Brangwyn," Rhoda explained. "Frankly, I'm crashing your party. I found the invitation on Dad's desk, and although he insisted that he never came to the dances and was invited only as a formality — I made him bring me."

David came out of hiding. He would have to greet her. He might as well do it boldly under hundreds of moving eyes, and show Nancy.

"Surprised?" she laughed. "I'm grateful to you, Rhoda. None of these girls would sit out a dance with me."

He had his back to the room. Rhoda faced it. He leaned over intimately, so her view would not be obstructed.

"So that's the girl Tony is in love with!" she murmured, as they danced by. "Why, David! She's that lovely nurse we saw in the elevator one night."

"Why do you say he's in love with her?"

"Tony doesn't look at a girl that way unless he's in love with her."

"Then you must have seen that look on his face before — to recognize it."

For barely an instant she looked down in sweet embarrassment, confessing and revealing her attempt to conceal. "I refuse to commit myself," she said with gay finality. "All I can say is that I —" and she touched her finger to her breast — "that I was not in love."

The waits between dances were necessarily short, and when the music started again, Thorne came over to climb Rhoda. "Mind if I take her, Anders?"

David rose to bow them away, and saw that Nancy was dancing with Melton.

David was crossing the floor, weaving in and out. Not ten feet away from Rhoda and Thorne, Nancy was dancing with Melton. "Observe," said Rhoda, just as David tapped Melton on the shoulder.

"Signifying nothing," Thorne answered. "Anything goes here, tonight, don't you know?"

Melton turned sharply. "Hey, Anders — you don't even dance."

"Take it away, Melton. I'm cutting in."

"The lady unfortunately has nothing to say," Nancy remarked, turning away with David.

He installed her in the corner where he had been sitting with Rhoda. Like every young doctor he was super-sensitive to his own symptoms and reactions. Rhoda had managed to tantalize him and amuse him. With Nancy he felt a surge of terror and of joy. Now that she was here he could think of nothing to say.

"You like to do the spectacular, don't you?" Nancy accused.

"I didn't invite Rhoda here."

"Of course you didn't. You couldn't." She watched him with a professional concentration, seeking out his thoughts. "Maybe you're a little obtuse."

Nigeria Will Get to See Their Hero

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP)—This is an exciting week for the television viewers of Nigeria. They will see their favorite star — Dick Tiger, the local boy who retained his world middleweight boxing championship Saturday night in a draw with Gene Fullmer. Fight films will be shown on the country's one station.

Robert Myers, a vice president of NBC International, currently is stationed in the African nation, helping the Nigerian government establish a television facility. At the moment it consists of the broadcasting station and some boosters to carry programs to three provinces — and a total of about 10,000 sets.

But even so, Nigerian tastes this early in the experiment in mass communication follow a familiar pattern. Next to Tiger — whose previous fight, shown a few days later on the station, sold a lot of television sets — the most popular programs are reruns of our own best-loved shows, like "Gunsmoke" and "Rawhide."

Children adore any cartoon program. Everybody is fascinated by sports — most of all rugby — although Myers is going to try some baseball soon.

In fact, it all sounds like early American television.

Andy Williams has been signed by Dinah Shore's sponsor for a series of eight NBC specials next season. They will be seen Tuesday nights, mixed in with Tele-

Mike Wallace has been hired by CBS News, and will start work the end of March, reporting and commenting on both radio and television shows.

ABC plans a special half-hour program, "Marilyn Monroe," on March 24. It is also interested in a second, hour-long special on the same subject later in the season.

Two Types of Russians Are in Cuba

By GEORGE ARFELD

HAVANA (AP)—Visitors from North America say they are impressed by the numbers of Russians seen in the Cuban capital and other places around this island.

"We read about them but didn't quite seem to accept the reports. We thought them perhaps a bit exaggerated," a Canadian caller said.

With the exception of a very few Soviet officers attached to their embassy, who turn up at selected functions in uniform, Russians seen in Havana invariably wear civilian clothes.

Among the Russians seen here, two types are clearly defined: those working as advisers to ministries, here with their families, and those who are roughly in their middle 20s and are understood to be billeted west of the city.

The advisers and their families have been lodged at various hotels and in certain subdivisions, such as the "Reperto Kohly," in the twin township of Marianao.

The others — far more numerous — come daily into Havana, riding on unmarked, Soviet-made heavy duty trucks. They seem to come from an area southwest of Havana where, before the Cuban crisis erupted last fall, facilities for them were being built. The area is well outside city limits, thus inaccessible to foreign correspondents lacking a special permit.

A number of the Russians head for a large, waterfront warehouse which appears to be used as a food depot. It is constantly under guard by uniformed Cuban soldiers and Russians in mufti.

Convoys of tank trucks, driven by Russians, come in from the west and disappear in the direction of the oil refineries, across Havana Bay. Other caravans, with backs tightly shrouded in

No Comment About Oliver

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Two Highway Commission officials declined comment Tuesday night on a published report that Highway Director F. R. Oliver has been asked to resign his post.

They were Oliver, contacted at his home here, and John E. Crain Sr. of Wilson reached in Hot Springs.

Oliver said he had no comment whatsoever on the report, Crain would neither confirm or deny it.

canvass, frequently lumber through the night, again headed westward, probably toward the port of Mariel, 34 miles distant.

The attitude of the Cuban toward the Russian varies. Militiamen, soldiers and students approach them readily and engage in an active exchange of sign language. Others do their best to ignore them.

Senate Has Cleared Way for Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate has finally cleared its decks for legislative action, after crushing a liberal-led challenge of the Democratic leadership. But a spokesman for the challengers said only a battle was lost, not the war.

The crucial vote Monday was a 68-17 defeat of Sen. Joseph S. Clark's proposal to enlarge the Senate Finance Committee. The Pennsylvania Democrat's second proposal, to enlarge the Appropriations Committee, was beaten 70-12. He withdrew a third motion, to enlarge the Foreign Relations Committee.

Then the Senate approved the committee assignments made by the leadership of both parties.

Clark, conceding defeat even before the vote, said the fight

"will continue until it is won." The action means the Senate, in session since Jan. 9, can now begin processing legislation in committees. Much of the intervening time was taken up by an unsuccessful attempt to make it easier to stop filibusters.

Focus of Clark's attack was the Senate Democratic Steering Committee, a 15-man group which includes seven Southern Democrats it passes on assignments of Democrats to committees.

The Steering Committee had refused to change the Finance Committee lineup from 11 Democrats and six Republicans to 14 Democrats and seven Republicans, more closely reflecting the 67-33 edge held by Democrats in the Senate.

Cafetorium Contract

Living Costs Again Climb

WASHINGTON (AP)—Living costs, as measured by the government, rose by two tenths of one per cent in January, largely due to higher food prices.

The January rise wiped out a decline of two tenths of one per cent in December.

The consumer price index stood at 106.0 per cent of the 1937-59 average last month compared with the record high of 106.1 per cent set last September.

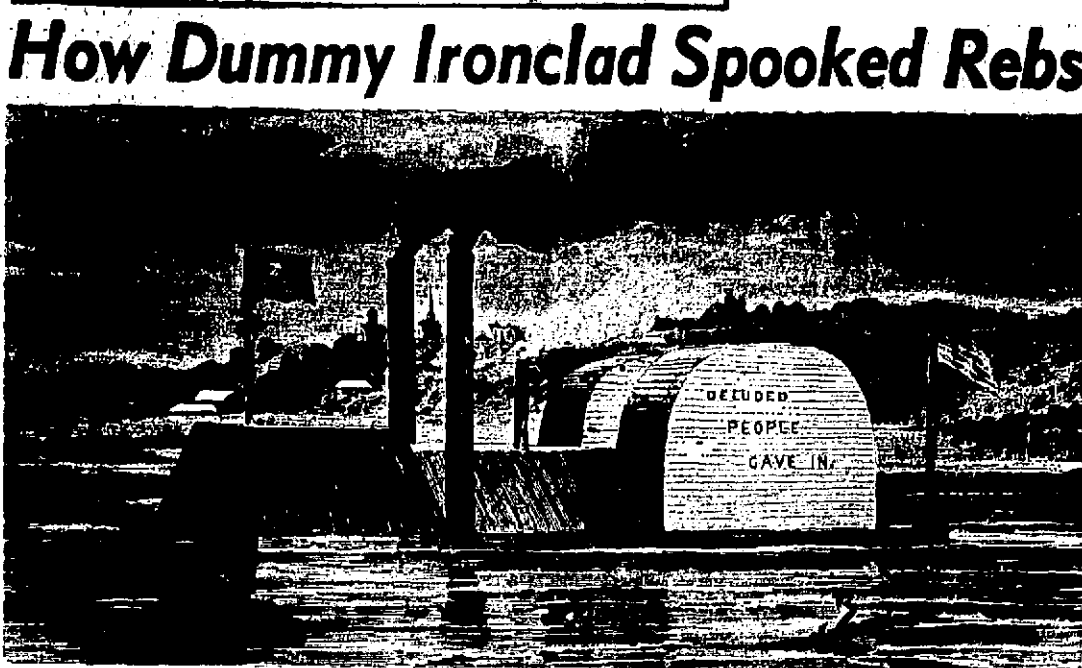

As a whole, retail food prices increased by 1.2 per cent in January with some much sharper increases in the price of fresh fruits and vegetables.

In announcing the figures today, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said that the sharply higher prices of fruits and vegetables resulted from the freezing weather in mid-December and from the dock strikes which sent up the price of bananas.

Food prices in January were 2.1 per cent above their levels of a year earlier.

How Dummy Ironclad Spooked Rebs

In manner of the day, contemporary artist lettered editorial comment, "Deluded People Gave In," on wheel housing of his drawing of Union's dummy ironclad.

War on the Mississippi was marked by battles between great, chunky ironclads. But one of the most successful river engagements can be credited to a barge with barrels for smokestacks, and logs for cannons.

The idea of sending a dummy ironclad into service was conceived by the Union's Adm. David Porter. The mission was intended to frighten away the Confederates near Vicksburg, Miss., who were trying to salvage the Union ironclad Indianola, which had sunk in shallow water.

The Indianola was a fine prize. Its enormous 11-inch cannons and a battery of smaller guns would have made an impressive addition to the Confederate river fleet.

Porter describes the construction of his "ironclad": "I set the whole squadron at work, and made a raft of logs 300 feet long, with sides to it, two huge wheel-houses and a formidable log casemate (gun chamber), from the portholes of which appeared sundry wooden guns . . . two smokestacks of hogheads completed the illusion."

The dummy was set adrift in the Mississippi on Feb. 24, 1863. The Confederate sentinels at Vicksburg were astonished to see the monster loom into view. Their cannons thundered a deadly welcome, but the shots went right through it. The Confederates never realized that they were bombarding an empty barge.

The current then carried the dummy within sight of a Confederate ironclad Queen of the West, captured earlier from the Union. This ship turned and chugged a retreat in the face of the unknown Union monster. As the "Queen" ran past the Indianola which the Confederates were desperately trying to salvage, she sounded the alarm.

Fearing that the sunken vessel would fall into Union hands, the Confederates blew up everything that remained above the water line.

Word of the disaster spread fast, and the humiliation in the South was deep. The Richmond Examiner scornfully recounted the episode:

"Here was perhaps the finest ironclad in the Western waters, captured after a heroic struggle, and destined to join the Queen of the West in a series of victories. Next we hear that she was of necessity blown up. Laugh and hold your sides . . . Blown up because . . . a mud-scow . . . is floated down the river."

Daisy Bates Has Won a Divorce

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Daisy Bates, head of the state National Association for the Advancement of Colored People when nine Negro students integrated Little Rock Central in 1957, won a di-vorice Tuesday.

Mrs. Bates, who, headed the state NAACP during the time federal troops were sent to keep order in the city and help implement the integration, was granted a divorce from L. C. Bates, who is now field secretary for the organization in Arkansas.

Judge Murray O. Reed awarded Mrs. Bates $200 a month, support and approved a property settlement giving her the couple's Little Rock home and most of its furnishings.

Her suit, filed Dec. 31 and alleging general indignities, was uncontested. The divorce was granted in Pulaski Chancery Court. She had married Bates March 4, 1942.

WHATTA WINTER!

It will be a long time before this winter is forgotten. Here's an example. One day in February found Karen Briggs celebrating her election as Miss Arlington State College with a visit to the beach. The temperature in Fort Worth, Tex., that day was 74. The week wasn't out before the scene above was snapped at El Paso, Tex. Icy roads had traffic tangled all over the city.

Jobless Has Labor Unions Concerned

By NORMAN WALKER
Associated Press Labor Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The shorter work week is more a symptom of organized labor's genuine concern over continuing high unemployment than an immediate goal.

Court Again to Take Up School Prayer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court today plunges once again into the emotion-charged issue of religion in public schools. It begins hearing arguments on two cases which may have impact in classrooms all across the land. Before the nine justices are appeals involving use of the Lord's Prayer and readings from the Bible in schools in Maryland and Pennsylvania.

The cases have national scope and will give the tribunal an opportunity to spell out how far it believes the founding fathers intended to go in separating church and state.

Interest in the Pennsylvania and Maryland cases sharpened after the Supreme Court's 6-1 decision last June 25, declaring unconstitutional the use in New York public schools of a non-denominational prayer written by state school officials.

That decision brought down a storm of criticism on the court. Some critics saw it as the first step in an assault on the nation's religious heritage.

The court received support from those who contended the "official prayer" was a breach of the First and 14th Amendments to the Constitution.

The First Amendment states "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." The 14th Amendment, adopted in 1868, imposed these restrictions on the states as well as Congress.

Under its customary practice, the Supreme Court found it necessary to rule on the Pennsylvania and Maryland appeals—whether it wanted to or not.

In the Maryland case, a state court ruled Bible readings and recitation of the Lord's Prayer did not violate the Constitution. Federal judges in Pennsylvania, however, said the opposite. A final decision by the higher tribunal in such an important appeal was required.

day session concluded here Tuesday, is a full-employment, full-production economy. They feel it will take drastic government action to get it.

They propose a deep tax cut along with more public works and other forms of deficit spending to increase purchasing power and demand for goods and services.

The 35-hour work week is another available tool, but the labor leaders probably recognize that opposition expressed by President should legislate a shorter work week.

Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, said he feels the 35-hour week may well be too sharp a cut for some firms and industries. He favors, instead, a basic 40-hour week that could be adjusted automatically according to economic changes.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, likes the straight 35-hour week approach. He said he isn't at all sure about Reuther's plan.

President Has Shifted on Tax Reforms

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—Within one month—pretty fast for a federal—President Kennedy not only has shifted ground on his plan to cut and reform taxes but became willing to abandon part of it, the "reform" part.

In his tax plan message to Congress Jan. 24 Kennedy emphasized this point throughout: Lower taxes would stimulate the economy by giving consumers more money to spend and business more to invest.

Never once in that long message did he suggest he feared another recession unless the economy got a shot-in-the-arm. But as criticism of his plan piled up he suddenly gave a gloomier reason for a tax reduction.

At his news conference last week he threw in this new element: fear of recession unless the economy got the stimulant he proposed. He said: "What I am most concerned about is the prospect of another recession."

Some of the steam must have been taken out of him by the way opposition to his plan—various parts of it—mounted since Jan. 24. Last fall the AFL-CIO, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, and the National Association of Manufacturers—an unusual group of running-mates under any conditions—all came out in favor of tax reduction.

But when they got a look this year at what Kennedy had in mind the two business groups parted company with the AFL-CIO and all three parted company with the President.

They weren't the only ones complaining. Some college professors, professional economists, business organizations, an even group of retired people found fault with different parts of the program and for different reasons.

Worse than that perhaps—for Kennedy—the reaction of his own leaders in Congress could hardly be called enthusiastic, although they loyally said they'd do their best.

To make things still worse, Kennedy backed a maneuver which was intended to grease the way for his plan in Congress only to see it collapse in complete defeat. This is what happened there.

Sen. Harry Byrd, D-Va., who takes a dim view of any tax cuts unless government spending is cut—and Kennedy wasn't cutting spending this year—is chairman of the conservative Finance Committee which will handle the measure.

Kennedy and his advisers thought, if they could just get the committee enlarged to make room for two Democrats favorable to him, they would overcome any bottlenecks. It was a feeble effort and they didn't make it.

This is what Kennedy proposed in January.

Over a three-year period cut taxes for individuals and business a total of $13.6 billion, and then, by making a number of changes in the law—Kennedy calls such changes "reforms"—the government would collect $3.4 billion it isn't collecting now.

Thus the total loss in revenue through the tax reductions would be $10.3 billion spread over three years. Kennedy figured the government would more than make up for that through increased spending and the creating of more jobs.

But the NAM and the Chamber of Commerce protested Kennedy's plan would give consumers too much of a break and business not enough. The AFL-CIO took a far different view.

It argued Kennedy's medicine wasn't strong enough. It wants the $10-billion cut he planned for three years condensed into one big $10-

Merger of Churches Proposed

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The newly advanced proposal for merger of Methodists and the Church of England in Great Britain comes in the midst of a worldwide effort to restore Christian unity.

Church leaders have referred to the trend as a "new Reformation," marking a revival of the long series of denominational divisions.

It has involved every branch of Christendom—Protestant, Eastern Orthodox and Roman Catholic—and emerged as the dominant note of the first session of the Second Vatican Council.

Among Protestants, more than 50 merger negotiations are currently going on in 35 countries.

This was disclosed in a recent survey by the Rev. Patrick C. Rodgers, of Geneva, Switzerland, executive secretary of the Department of Faith and Order of the World Council of Churches.

"There are people all over the world terribly anxious to attain a greater modicum of Christian Community," he said in a recent interview.

In the United States, several merger negotiations are now going on, and several have recently been successfully completed.

One series of talks involves the Protestant Episcopal Church (the American wing of British Anglicanism) in a consultation on church union with the Methodist Church and four other denominations.

Initial discussions were held last spring. Another round of talks is scheduled March 17-19 in Oberlin, Ohio.

Other denominations whose representatives are taking part are the United Presbyterian Church, the Christian Churches (Disciples), the United Evangelical Brethren, and the United Church of Christ.

The United Church itself is a recent merger of Congregational Christians and the Evangelical and Reformed Church, the first union in this country to combine bodies of different national origins.

In two years, eight branches of Lutheranism have united into two large bodies, the Lutheran Church in America and the American Lutheran Church. The United Presbyterian Church represents a recent merger of two branches.

Moves in Britain toward bringing Methodists and the Church of England together would likely have a stimulating effect on closer relations of the two communions in this country.

Methodists and Episcopalians stem from common background. The founder of Methodism, John Wesley, was an Anglican priest, and remained one throughout his life.

Protestant and Roman Catholic meetings also are mushrooming across the country, in the wake of the spirit generated by the Second Vatican Council and Pope John XXIII's open-armed hospitality toward "my brothers in Christ."

billion cut in one year.

It might be argued that Kennedy, knowing how much opposition he would face on his tax plan, decided, for political reasons, to lump cuts and "reforms" together so that if the going got too tough he could compromise by insisting on the cut while yielding on the reforms.

But it doesn't look like that. He expressed willingness Monday—far too early for a showdown or need of compromise—to forget about the reform part of his plan.

This seems a more likely explanation: that the combined plan wasn't well thought out by him and his advisers and he is now painfully beginning to realize it.

What Is Dandruff?

Next time you scratch your head think of this: Nearly 70 million Americans have dandruff. Aside from being an embarrassment on a dark suit, what is dandruff, anyway? Essentially, it's dead skin cells scaling off the scalp faster than they should. We say faster than they should because there is a normal shedding rate. The body is constantly sloughing dead skin cells and replacing them with new ones. Medical science recognizes two general types of dandruff—dry and oily.

The dry flakes are white or grayish, and hard. The oily flakes are yellowish and crusty. In the latter form, the skin and hair usually feel greasy too.

cal opinion leans toward the probability that simple dandruff is caused by a combination of a number of factors, including the three noted.

One frequent question asked by those who suddenly discover they are carrying around a private "baldness" is, does dandruff cause baldness? Hair specialists say generally no. They are quick to add, however, that simple dandruff may result in some temporary hair loss.

When hair specialists talk of dandruff, they are careful to use the word "control"—never "cure." To date, there is no cure for dandruff. The best that can be hoped for is continuing control.

Basic to any dandruff-control program is a clean scalp. Regular shampooing is usually enough to keep mild cases in check. More serious problems require medicated preparations.

A big step in medical control of dandruff was taken in a recent test of 700 persons with scalp problems. Abbott Laboratories conducted the test using a new suspension formula, now available through pharmacies as Iquid. Members of the group washed their hair with good commercial soaps or shampoos. After rinsing, Iquid was applied and allowed to remain on the scalp for about five minutes before a second rinsing. Test result: Effective dandruff control in 95 per cent of those treated. Next time you scratch your head think about this.

WEDDING BELLS FOR LONELY HEARTS SOUND SOUR NOTE!

By HELEN WOREN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I met my husband through a lonely hearts club. Wedding bells rang eight months later. I was 18, he 25. We've been married four gloomy years. The only ray of sunshine in this dark picture is our little girl.

The first year my husband got fired from his job because of some woman. He sent me to pick up his pay check and, while I was gone, packed and left in our car for parts unknown. A few weeks later he long-distanced from New York. Having a good job, I was reluctant to leave. He sent his brother and sister for me. So I came. Ten months after, baby was born. Our love for her is all we have in common.

Now he wants to take up a land grant out West. This means hard, back-breaking work for both of us. I know, having been raised on a farm. He's a city-bred house painter who's never put foot in the country and can't even milk a cow.

How can I tell him I don't want to go without making him mad? He's cross most of the time as it is; shoves me away if I try to kiss him, glowers at dinner and goes out by himself. We manage an apartment building in New York (I do most of the work) but at least it's a roof over our heads and a living. It, plus his painting jobs, keep us going. Wouldn't we be ninies to exchange this security for the hazards of homesteading? —Apprehensive

Dear Apprehensive: Enlist the help of your husband's brother and sister since they are evidently interested in keeping your marriage intact. Ask them to join you and your husband in a family powwow about homesteading.

So many things have to be taken into consideration when you homestead: the location; whether you plan to arm or sell once the land is proven; capital enough money to build a shack and see you through the first year; transportation.

How about doctors and hospitals for you when the second baby comes? These are practical questions which must be faced. It's not good sense to make the move unless you have a working plan upon which you both agree.

Most of the good land has already been homesteaded. Of course this land your husband is considering may be the exception. Certainly it would be a new life for you both and sharing the experience — even the hardships — would bring you two closer together. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope for "Keystones of the Home."

Dear Helen: I am an 86-year-

Russia and China to Air Troubles

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China said today it is ready to hold private talks with the Soviet Union on the ideological issues splitting the Communist bloc. But it coupled this offer with a slashing attack on Premier Khrushchev for "double dealing" and demanded apologies.

The Chinese Communist party made this condition for the peace talks proposed by Moscow in a 70,000-word editorial in the Peking People's Daily. It also demanded that the Russian Communists repudiate their renewed friendship with Yugoslavia and cease their attacks on Peking's tiny Balkan ally, Albania.

The editorial and its slashing criticism indicated the Chinese-Soviet relations are as angry as ever despite recent public signs of attempts to ease the quarrel. Peking's conditions for peace talks are clearly unacceptable to Moscow.

The Chinese for the first time took public notice of (1) the Soviet Union's supply of MIG-21 jet fighters to India, (2) the tearing up by Khrushchev of hundreds of Chinese aid contracts and (3) his bitter opposition to Chairman Mao Tse-tung's pet programs—the industrial leap forward and the people's communes.

Without naming names, the paper charged that in 1960 "certain comrades" put economic pressure on China. This was clearly Khrushchev's Russia.

The editorial accused Khrushchev of starting the squabble in the Communist camp by publicly taking sides with India on Sept. 9, 1959, over the then developing China-India border dispute.

This apparently referred to a Tass statement issued that day urging both sides to settle the quarrel but refraining from giving full backing to China. It was published just before Khrushchev left for his tour of the United States. Peking said Soviet attacks on China and Albania picked up following the "Camp David talks" between Khrushchev and President Eisenhower—and have continued ever since.
